

120,000 EMPLOYEES PUT BAN ON STRIKES

Packing Houses to Operate
Whether $1 a Day Rise Is Granted or Lost.

SOME ADVANCE LIKELY

Industrial Arbitration as It Is Found in Alschuler's Court
Wins Favor.

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.
CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—A way to end all strikes is seen in the outcome of the hearing by Judge Samuel Alschuler, an arbitrator of the plea of 120,000 packing house employees in Chicago and eleven other cities for an increase of $1 a day in wages. The men and women who ask the increase are working and the plants are operating without curb, and the employees will work and the plants operate wether the employees get their maximum request or only a part of it. The hearing was recessed to-day and will be resumed Thursday.

Alschuler and his decision are an epic in the industrial world and will form the basis for a "jurisprudence for industrial disputes," a sort of common law based on decision of arbitrators, which will be the basis of wage settlements in the future instead of the courts.

Living Costs to Go Higher.

"The employees have been able to take advantage of the upturn of the market as it progressed. They contend also that the cost of living is likely to go higher, and that as they will have to wait months for another hearing and another award, they should have practically a 25 per cent. increase over what they were awarded a year ago."

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.
WILKESBARRE, Sept. 18.—The Pennsylvania Coal Company strike, which has caused idleness for 8,000 men for ten weeks and greatly reduced the production in the Wyoming Valley, probably will be settled on Monday morning, when the strikers are to meet and vote on a proposition submitted by Capt. W. A. May, president of the company. Enoch Williams, leader of the insurgents, has counseled the miners not to accept, and has told them they will "be licked if they do."
